PARSONAGE PAINTED GREEN.

COLOR CRITICISED AS HIDEOUS AND PERFECTLY AWFUL.

How the Eyes of Chatham, N. J., Came to Be Affronted by an Alleged Blare of Color-And the Jokers Let Fly at It, Too-"Too Green to Burn." Said They.

CHATHAM, N. J., Nov. 1.-The members of the Presbyterian Church, the non-memhers and every one else in this village who isn't blind or lacking in appreciation of the beautiful, are all stirred up over a question of art. The cause is the color of the paint on the Presbyterian parsonage, and the interest and discussion that it has caused rival that caused last winter by the burning of a chicken coop and a havstack both in the same week.

The Presbyterians are to have a new church and the site has already been purchased. In the rear of the lot upon which the edifice is to be built was a fine house which was purchased for a parsonage and the Rev. Mr. Gardiner, the pastor, is soon to move in. When the parsonage was secured it needed a coat of paint, and selection of the color was too big a estion for the local committee to decide so they left it to Architect Cady who is to build the church.

"Green," said Mr. Cady. "We want a

"Green," said Mr. Cady. "We want a color that will harmonize with the surroundings and will divert as little attention from the church as possible. We want something that will be subdued. The shade of green I have in mind will blend with the verdure of the pines in the background. Let it be green."

"Good," said the church members with true appreciation of the theory that prompted the selection. So, green it was.

The painters got busy a few days ago. First they put on a coat that caused the artistic emotions of the inhabitants to rise and bubble over. It was a shade hard to describe; a grating, Jarring color that loomed up violently against the beauties of nature's autumnal blends, or browns.

"Oh, oh, isn't it awful?" asked critical ladies of one another.

"Yes," it was explained, "but that's only the first coat. Wait until it's finished."

So Chatham waited in a body until the second coat was put on and was dry. Then Chatham went over one good supering second coat was put on and was dry. Then Chatham went over on a good sunshiny afternoon to make a fair and final judg-ment. There was one opinion and only

Even the pastor and his wife had to admit it. Mr. Gardiner said it was hideous and some of the church members so far forgot themselves that they said it was diabolical. Every one wondered where on earth the architect or painter had been able to find such a bizarre and hitherto unseen blare of color.

Even the town jokers took the hue of the parsonage for a theme when they got the opportunity the day after the painters had finished their job. It happened that the shingles on the roof of the parsonage caught fire. The fire bell rang; the bucket brigade hurried to the scene of the conflagration and put out the blaze quicker than any fire in Chatham was ever extinguished.

The jokers all saw the opportunity at once.

"Too green to burn," they yelled at every "Too green to burn," they yelled at every one they met.

The ladies of the church held a meeting last week and adjourned to inspect the parsonage. "Awful," was their verdict.

The men gather nightly in the grocery stores. "Never saw anything like it; something terrible," they say.

"Hideous," say the Rev. and Mrs. Gardinar.

The parsonage will probably be repainted. Architect Cady doesn't live in town. He hasn't visited the village since the painters

Mrs. Edward J. McGarrell of 313 West Seventeenth street went to the West Twentieth street police station last evening and asked the police to find her husband and his adopted daughter, Nellie Glinn. Mrs. she believed that the two had run away together.

The McGarrells live in a well appointed apartment which has been shared by Miss Glinn, who is only 17 years old. McGarrell adopted the girl five or six years ago, his wife says. She told the police that Nellie had grown very handsome in the last year or two and that her husband apparently become influenced with had apparently become infatuated with Both McCarrell and the girl have been away since Friday, according to Mrs. McGarrell. On Friday evening, she says, an expressman called for the girl's trunk and she later learned that it was taken to the Pennsylvania Railroad ferry at West Twenty-third street.

Mrs. McGarrell says that her husband is $5 years old. She herself is a young woman.

CHIEF OF POLICE SHOT DEAD. Was Arresting a Negro for Halloween Pranks in a Chicago Suburb.

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.-Chief of Police George Airie of Morgan Park was shot and killed last night by a negro whom he had arrested for playing Halloween pranks. The negro and three companions, also col-ored, were arrested and placed in the town ored, were arrested and placed in the town lockup.

The news of the killing spreadthrough the suburb with rapidity and soon crowds of men and boys gathered in front of the village hall and it was with the greatest difficulty that they were prevented from using violence. Fear that the friends of the dead man would break into the jail and attack the negroes led the police to take the prisoners to the Englewood jail for safekeeping. They will be held pending the coroner's inquest.

The negroes were cut and bruised by stones and clubs in the hands of the mob.

STOLE HIS FATHER'S $300. Young Oakley Made a Trip to Chicago and Spent All but $20.

John Oakley, a hackman, of 421 East Nineteenth street, led his fifteen-year-old son William into the East Twenty-second street station yesterday afternoon and charged him with the theft of $300. The money was stolen from a bureau drawer on Oct. 20, and the same day the boy disappeared. He returned to his home yesterday wearing a new suit of clothes. The boy confessed that he had taken the money. He had made a trip to Chicago and had only $20 left.

NO EARLY MILK FOR CHICAGO. Milk Wagon Drivers' Union Won't Deliver

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.-Fresh milk and cream for breakfast will hereafter be a luxury. for the milk wagon drivers' new winter schedule goes into effect to-morrow morning. This schedule prohibits the delivery of milk and cream before 8 o'clocck in the morning between Nov. 1, 1903, and April 1904, except on Sundays and holidays. Announcement of the change was made through circular latters to the customers yesterday. The letters contained an order from the Milk Wagon Drivers' Union. from which there is no appeal. The milk and dairy companies are satisfied with the arrangement-in fact, it is part of the agreement beween the union and the milk dealers, as the late delivery of milk in cold weather means a saving of about 25 per cent. in the number of bottles broken by frost.

HELP FOR TURNER, ANARCHIST. If He's Worthy, a C. F. U. Committee Is to Try to Prevent His Deportation.

An attempt was made yesterday by Joseph Barondess, ex-leader of the cloak makers, to get the Central Federated Union to pass a resolution indorsing John Turner the English Anarchist, who was arrested a short time ago at the Murray Hill Lyceum and who is now awaiting deportation.

Barondess, being permitted to speak as a visitor, declared that Turner came here on a peaceful mission as the representative of a trades union and had never advocated

"I am not an Anarchist myself," said Barondess, "but I do not believe in condemning a man who does not break the law simply because he is an Anarchist. The law under which Mr. Turner was arrested was passed after the assassination of President McKinley, and while I am a Socialist dent McKinley, and while I am a Socialist no one deplored that event more than I did. The Socialists, while they are not in favor of the present order of society, believe in obeying the existing laws."

Secretary Herman Robinson moved that a committee be appointed to find out if Turner was worthy of the support of the Central Federated Union, and if so to try and have his deportation stopped.

"I don't believe in having anything to do with Anarchists," said Delegate Hand of the Drivers' Union. "If any resolutions are passed here in the interest of anarchy, I'll protest against them."

"We should go very slow in this," said Philip Kelly of the Theatrical Protective Union. "There is a law on the statute book for the deportation of Anarchists and I am a law-abiding man."

"I believe in observing the laws of this country, which is the greatest country on earth, and where there are the finest laws of any country in the world," said Delegate Archibald of the Paper Hangers; "I know what I am talking about as I came here from I reland I don't believe in

Delegate Archibald of the Paper Hangers, "I know what I am talking about as I came here from Ireland. I don't believe in anarchy or supporting an Anarchist."

The motion for a committee to investigate Turner and try to prevent his deportation if he should be found worthy was carried. Its members were left wondering how to go about it and how to prevent Turner's deportation.

NO ONE KNOWS THE COST? You Can Tell if You Vote Yes and Pay the Canal Bills.

The original Eric Canal exceeded the estimated cost by 45 per cent. Then the canal was enlarged and the cost ran 56 per cent ver the estimates.

The construction of the proposed bargeway would be spread out over seven to way would be spread out over seven to ten different State administrations, each with its friends to take care of and its en-gineering theories to exploit. One adminis-tration disposed of $9,000,000 so effectually that no trace can be found of it except in the debt now standing and the suits against the State that followed.

What will the bargeway cost?

Ponder the question before you embark the State on this flood tide of waste.

Louis Marshall, atterney for Morris Gug-Exploration Company, said yesterday that he did not admit on Saturday in the Tombs police court, where Guggenheim had been brought on a charge of perjury, that there were any false statements in the answer made by Mr. Guggenheim in the suit brought by Col. Dennis B. Harris. Mr. Marshall said also that he told the Magistrate that the matter should be left to the decision of the civil court, and that the Magistrate killed by a runaway horse at 130th street and Eighth avenue on Saturday afternoon were identified at the Morgue early yesterday morning by Harvey Crosby as those of his wife and mother.

Crosby has for many years been a head waiter in Burns's restaurant on Sixth avenue. He lives at 268 West 153d street. The older woman was Mrs. Fannie Crosby, 56 years old, of Nova Scotia. She arrived in this city Saturday afternoon to spend several weeks with her son, whom she had not seen in eight years. Crosby, who works until late at night, had only time greet his mother and then hurry to work He was to have taken yesterday off and ooked forward to spending the day at looked forward to spending the day at home. He didn't get through work until 1 o'clock yesterday morning and then he hurried to his home. On the front stoop he found his two boys, Harvey and Arthur, aged 10 and 7. The children were crying and Crosby asked what the trouble was. "Mamma and grandma went away and didn't come back, and we're afraid to stay in the dark," said the older lad.

Crosby put the children in care of a neighbor and then searched Harlem in the hope of learning the whereabouts of the two women. After several hours search he finally learned from a policeman that two women had been run over on Eighth avenue and taken to the J. Hood Wright Hospital.

There Crosby learned that the women had died shortly after being brought in. The doctor told him, also, that the older woman had whispered that her name was Crosby.

Crosby hastened to the Morgue. crosby hastened to the Morgue. Inere he was compelled to wait for nearly two hours before the bodies arrived. This delay was due to the fact that they were sent from the hospital to the Harlem Morgue before being transferred to the foot of East Twenty-sixth street.

Meantime the bodies from the Eleventh avenue fire were arriving at the Morgue, and it was 9 o'clock before the bodies of the two women reached there and were identified by Crosby. He said that his wife was 30 years old. Crosby all through his wait at the Morgue appeared unusually cool and collected. After identifying the bodies he telephoned for an undertaker. Then he broke down completely.

"The Lyric School of Opera" is to be incorporated at Albany next week, according to present plans, by a number of theatrical managers whose musical comedies, buresques and light operas are now before the public. Florenz Ziegfeld. Homer Moore is to be the director, and the school is to be on the top floor of the Lyric Theatre building, with use of the Lyric stage. Reginald De Koven owns the building.

Homer Moore for the last five years has been manager of the Choral Symphony Society of St. Louis and manager of the Odeon Building. He was also a lecturer in music, making a specialty of Wagner subjects. He is a high barytone and was one of the principals of Mrs. Thurber's American Opera Company under the direction of Theodore Thomas. Early in the 90s he sang here the part of the high priest in "Samson and Dellah," given by the Oratorio Society, with Walter Damrosch as conductor.

It is expected that the school will open as soon as the quarters in the Lyric Theatre building can be put in order. These consist of a dozen rooms originally planned to house a school of opera. Said one of the projectors yesterday:

"Everything is to look toward obtaining practical results; for the managers intercested expect to replenish and supply their companies in great part from the school. No pupil will be accepted that does not exhibit a certain degree of talent, beauty of voice and technical proficiency vocally. Part of the work will be to understudy operas on the road."

Tuition will not be free.
